Dr. J. T. Dorris
Writes Historical Book
On Pardon, Amnesty

FACT AND FICTION: A bit of fact, a bit of fiction, is the menu for today. Our fact is in the realm of history, our fiction in English literature. Let us begin with fact:

HISTORY: A native son, Dr. J. T. Dorris, formerly of Harrisburg and a professor at Eastern Kentucky State college at Richmond, is presenting to the Mitchell-Carnege library of Harrisburg a copy of his recent book, "Pardon and Amnesty under Lincoln and Johnson: The Restoration of the Confederates to their Rights and Privileges, 1861-1865."

Subject of the book was suggested to the author by the late James G. Randall of the University of Illinois. Dr. Randall, while president of the American Historical Association, prepared in November, 1952, an introduction of nine printed pages to the volume. Dr. Dorris began, in earnest, his study of the subject in the summer of 1925. He has published five articles from his study and another article will appear in the spring issue of the Fulson Club Quarterly.

Dr. Dorris gained access to the Amnesty papers in Washington in 1925. He is the only person who has used these papers for publication. When his book was published late last November, restrictions on the use of these papers were removed. The Department of Justice and War had refused the use of these personal letters to Andrew Johnson from 1865 to 1953.

These papers and other related manuscripts comprise many thousands of personal letters to the President for pardon. The petitioners had been supporters of the Confederate States of America. They desired pardon so that their civil rights and political privileges might be restored which had been lost by supporting the Confederacy. President Lincoln adopted a policy of pardon and amnesty which was carried on by his successor, Andrew Johnson.

The Fourteenth Amendment, ratified in July, 1868, denied some 20,000 Confederates the right to hold any office in the U. S. until disability was removed by two-thirds majority of both houses of Congress, which began in June, 1868.

Dr. Dorris' book is the first thorough treatment of this important subject.

ENGLISH LITERATURE: Sir Launcelot was making a long trip through England on horseback.

After several days his horse became very, very tired and he stopped at a livery stable, telling his proprietor:

"I have come a long way and I need a fresh horse to complete my journey."

"I do not have a single horse available," replied the proprietor as he pointed toward empty stalls. "I'm sorry, but there's nothing I can do."

"But I must finish my journey and I must ride," pleaded Sir Launcelot. Then pointing to a huge St. Bernard dog sleeping in the corner of the stable, Sir Launcelot asked:

"Can I not ride yonder huge beast on the remainder of my jaunt?"

To which the stable operator, easing over to the animal, replied: "I would not send a knight out on a dog like this!"

So long, people.

Mrs. Clarence Beers Found Dead Of Gunshot Wounds

Nation Pays Tribute to Abraham Lincoln

Hundreds Make Pilgrimage to Tomb Near Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI)—The nation today honored martyred President Abraham Lincoln on the 145th anniversary of his birth.

Led by a representative of President Eisenhower, hundreds of pilgrims made pilgrimages to the tomb near here where Lincoln's body is laid.

Activity in Springfield, heart of the country which calls itself the "Land of Lincoln," came almost to a halt for the holiday.

All state, county and city offices, banks and most businesses closed for the day to honor the Great Emancipator. The day is marked with more notice here than the birthday of George Washington Feb. 22.

Army Lt. Col. Leonard C. Cooke laid the wreath at the tomb for Mr. Eisenhower, accompanied by officers and men from the Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

Wreath by Eisenhower

At Washington Mr. Eisenhower, laid a wreath at the marble statue of a brooding Lincoln in the Lincoln Memorial. For the first time, members of Sons of the Confederate Veterans took part in the Washington ceremonies honoring Lincoln.

Other organizations making traditional visits to the tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery near Springfield included the American Legion, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, and Women's Relief Corps.

Members of the local bar association gathered at the Sangamon County Courthouse, which was the state capitol when Lincoln was a legislator, for their unique "pilgrimage."

Every year the attorneys hike from the courthouse across town to the tomb, following the route taken by the Lincoln funeral procession. Reaffirming his support for Mr. Eisenhower, McCarthy said the President had not done a "perfect" job but one so "infinitely better" than the job that has been done in the last 20 years that there is no comparison."

The mobile mine rescue unit will also be transferred to Harrisburg and swift and efficient service will be provided in the event an emergency presents itself. Our mobile unit will be on the scene in the event of an emergency call before we can assemble our mine rescue team.

"The location of the station in Harrisburg will not affect the personnel from the Eldorado station in any way—the mine rescue team, the station superintendent, and his assistant will be retained in their same capacities."

Death Takes James W. Jones

James W. Jones, 78, died suddenly of a heart attack Thursday at 4 p.m. at the Good Shepherd Nursing Home in Eldorado. Mr. Jones resided at 500 West South street, Harrisburg, until he moved to the Home March 17, 1953.

A retired construction worker, he is survived by two brothers, Lewis Jones, Eldorado, and Toby Jones, Denver; two sisters, Mrs. Alice Jones, who also resides in the Good Shepherd Nursing Home, and Mrs. Monroe Dixon of Belleville, a half sister, Mrs. Preston Herrin of Harrisburg.

His body lies in state at the Martin E. Horn funeral home in Eldorado, where Rev. O. C. Cooper will conduct the funeral service Saturday at 2 p.m. Burial will be in Sunset Hill cemetery.

Republican Orators Flay Democrats to Climax Lincoln Day Addresses

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Republican orators across the land capped a week-long series of Lincoln Day attacks on Democrats today and asked the American people to elect a GOP Congress this year.

At countless dinners, they viewed with alarm conditions they found on taking over from the Democrats last year. And they pointed with pride to the progress of the first Republican administration in twenty years.

Avoid Attacks, Nixon Says

The Republicans rolled out some of their biggest guns in Thursday night's round of speech-making.

Vice President Richard Nixon said in New Haven, Conn., that Republicans should avoid "indiscriminate attacks" on the Democratic Party as a whole because the administration must have some Democratic help in Congress.

Warn of Worst Fire Hazard in Southern Illinois

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—State foresters warned today that tinder-dry Southern Illinois faces a fire hazard that could surpass the record number of fires registered in 1952.

Staff Forester Max Lane, Benton, turned in a report to State Conservation Director Glen D. Palmer saying fires are breaking out in many areas across the lower tip of Illinois.

"Even the bottomlands are burning," Lane said, "and it looks as if it will get worse unless we get a soaking rain."

The worst fire year on record in Southern Illinois was 1952 when 219,000 acres were burned. Lane said this mark might be exceeded as the drought continues through 1954.

Lane said the worst fires were south and west of McLeansboro, where 600 acres had been destroyed by noon Thursday. Despite efforts of hundreds of fire fighters, he said, the blaze was out of control.

He reported smaller fires in the Little Muddy bottoms, near Murphysboro, near Pinckneyville, and at Benton.

Lane said bottomlands are so dry that 10,000 acres have burned over in 75 fires since the start of the year. This compared with 26,000 acres of bottomland burned over in all of 1953.

Eve Arden and Donald O'Connor Win TV Awards

SPRINGFIELD (UPI)—Gov. William G. Stratton today awaited federal approval of his modified plan for merging the 33rd and 44th Illinois National Guard divisions.

The chief executive disclosed Thursday he had agreed to some changes in the detailed plan for the "new" 33rd Division which he had unveiled Jan. 7. The two main changes were decisions to:

1. Maintain units and rent armories at Effingham, Freeport, Litchfield, and West Frankfort—all omitted from the original blueprint.

2. Locate the 33rd division's headquarters at Urbana, instead of Peoria as Stratton previously had announced.

Stratton announced his plan to consolidate the divisions Dec. 17. One of the major aims, he said, was to save money by using only state-owned armories and not to rent.

On Jan. 7, Stratton announced the appointment of top officers of the new 33rd and told how many units each town would be assigned.

Some guard officers criticized various phases of the plan, from the original idea of the merger itself to the designation of Peoria as headquarters and the allotment of units.

Stratton made it clear from start to finish he wasn't backing down on the major phase of the plan—consolidate the divisions.

It did appear, however, that he met some of the other objections Thursday, for the changes announced corresponded closely to suggestions on how a single division should be set up, made by guard generals.

Neither were present to hear the screams of approval. Miss Arden, home sick with a cold, was hooking a rug and watching the ceremony on TV.

"I don't believe it!" she cried. O'Connor was rehearsing his Sunday program.

Although Lucille Ball missed after winning the award for two years, her program, "I Love Lucy," was picked the best comedy show.

The stars of "Our Miss Brooks," and "Colgate Comedy Hour," voted top by the nation's TV critics, were honored at a star-studded banquet given by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences Thursday night.

The only slip-up for two years was in the four-hour banquet came when Desi Arnaz star of "I Love Lucy," stalked scowling from the stage. The audience had laughed at his heavy Cuban accent.

When asked whether the changes were suggested by Maj. Gens. Harry L. Bolen, Cairo, and George F. Ferry, Chicago, Stratton replied

"not necessarily."

Stratton said the decision was made to have the headquarters at Urbana instead of Peoria because "we felt we could work in the available officers better."

He added, however, that some headquarters staff officers will work in Chicago and that Brig. Gen. Clifford Hodgin, commander of the new 33rd, will probably have his own office in his home town, Peoria.

The final detailed plan setting up units of the new 33rd was forwarded to Washington, D. C., Thursday by Maj. Gen. Leo M. Boyle, the state adjutant general.

The plan needs formal approval from the National Guard Bureau.

Authorities said the plan probably would be ready to go into operation March 1.

Charge 'Spoils System' in State Conservation Dep't

CHICAGO (UPI)—The Illinois Conservation Department is under investigation on a charge of substituting the "spoils system" for civil service, the Civil Service Protective Assn. counsel said today.

Michael F. Ryan, general counsel for the association, said the Conservation Department is transferring employees, and making it miserable for them, merely to supplement them with political appointees."

The CSPD investigation will be completed in a week or 10 days.

Ryan said his investigators have "factual data" of the abuses, but he refused to release names or incidents until all the information is gathered.

Several top conservation officials have been called to a hearing in Springfield, it was reported.

Ryan said "it is quite evident and clear that this department has little regard for the efficiency or status of civil service employees."

Last year, 101 civil service employees were fired or forced to resign. Only 17 civil service employees replaced them. The remaining number were provisional or political appointees.

It has been said that only 71 per cent of the department employees were not from the civil service rolls.

Robert Cummings isn't convinced in this scene with Marie Wilson, its RKO's new comedy riot, "Marry Me Again," to show at the Orpheum Friday and Saturday.

DREW PEARSON Says: Gouzenko Predicts War With Russia In 10 Years; We Should Encourage High-Placed Russians To Desert Kremlin; U. S. Must Penetrate Iron Curtain.

WASHINGTON. — Igor Gouzenko, the Soviet code clerk who exposed the spy ring in Canada, had some potent advice to offer during my second interview with him. The advice should be particularly appropriate now that the U. S. Army in Japan has wooed and won another high-up member of the Soviet espionage apparatus, and now that purges are taking place in two important parts of the Soviet Union.

What Gouzenko told me boiled down briefly to the following: 1. There will be war between the United States and Russia in 10 years if it's left to the Soviet military and unless the United States does something to penetrate the Iron Curtain.

2. Scores of highly placed Russians would be glad to desert communism and join the West if they were given proper security.

3. The way to convert American Communists away from communism is by persuasion rather than terrorism before the spotlight of congressional committees.

The free world hasn't begun to scratch the surface in wooing the peoples behind the Iron Curtain. This is the real Achilles' heel of communism and the way to prevent war.

Gouzenko also said that he had never heard the name of Harry D. White mentioned while he was coding and decoding cables for the Soviet spy ring in Canada. This is probably one reason why the Senate Internal Security committee

"That is admirable. The Russian people will keep that and use it. They would never give it up. They like tangible gadgets from the West."

WOONG HIGH REDS

When I asked him what he would suggest to encourage more Russians, Poles, Czechs and others with important military or diplomatic information to come over to the free world, he talked at some length.

This, incidentally, was the chief point he emphasized to senators Jenner and McCarran when they went to Canada to interview him for the Senate Internal Security Committee. So far, their report has not been made public.

"In front of every potential escapee there is a problem," Gouzenko told me. "He has to think, 'will he be accepted as a member of society in the free world?' So you must give him assurances in advance. He must be sure of a job, of police protection, and of material help."

"There is also a matter of human dignity involved," he continued. "Sometimes a high Russian military attache or general would like to come over to the West, but he continues on with the Soviet simply because he is afraid he will be humiliated here, and perhaps be put to work as a janitor or a doorman in front of a New York night club."

I told Gouzenko of my experience in Germany where I found various high Russian escapees had been shunted back and forth between Frankfort and Washington by the U. S. military, milked dry of their information, then allowed to sit and rot in concentration camps outside Frankfort.

LOST IN SHUFFLE

Two years ago I persuaded 14 senators to introduce a bill to study this whole problem of Russian escapees, but like most legislation of this kind, it got lost in the shuffle.

Gouzenko emphasized that this was one thing the United States would have to pay much more attention to if we wanted important military men to desert the Iron Curtain. He didn't say so in direct language, but I gathered that Canada was doing a much more efficient job on this than the United States.

Regarding American or Canadian Communists, Gouzenko said: "They do not work for money, but because of a mistaken ideology. The best way to convert them is by persuasion, not terrorism. They have been misled and we should all work at correcting their wrong ideas."

When I asked what he thought of persuading by hauling Communists before congressional committees he said that this was likely to discourage their conversion, though he said he did not want to criticize any senator or any Senate committee.

"The Russian people," Gouzenko said, "have the most friendly attitude toward the American people. They admire your technical achievements, your good spirit, your spiritual strength, this is what particularly amazed the Russian people about Americans. And they admire your ability to do things, to get moving, and not to stay in one place."

"If peace is left to the Russian people rather than their government," he concluded, "I would say that they will wish peace forever with the American country."

Mrs. Mary Harper Presents
Lesson at Home Bureau Meeting

At the meeting held recently by the Galatia Home Bureau unit at the home of Mrs. Minard Hawkins, the major lesson on "Kitchen Storage" was presented by the home adviser, Mrs. Mary Harper. She suggested that members discard the unused utensils in their kitchen and reassemble the seldom-used group and the seldom-used group in order to facilitate their work.

Mrs. H. G. Triplett gave the minor topic, "Picture Arrangement," with illustrations on hanging and grouping pictures.

During the business session a handicraft club was organized with 12 members. Mrs. John C. Small was elected president, and members were invited to hold their first meeting on March 2 at her home. Basket-making will be learned at this all-day meeting.

The nestless was assisted by Mrs. Edna Cochrum in serving cherry pie al'amode and coffee to the 11 members and Mrs. Harper.

The March meeting of the unit will be at the home of Mrs. Triplett.

Mrs. J. A. Dickerson
Guest Speaker at Meeting
By First Methodist WSCS

The general meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church was held Wednesday afternoon at Wesley Center. A luncheon by the executive board preceded the meeting.

Mrs. Herman Schwartz, president, opened the meeting with prayer. Guest speaker, Mrs. J. A. Dickerson, wife of the pastor of the African Methodist Episcopal church, was introduced by Mrs. John Schwartz, program chairman. Mrs. Dickerson told of the founding and work of the church to which she belongs, pointing out that it originated with Richard Allen and is not a branch of another church. She gave interesting accounts of experiences in various communities, discussing characteristics of her people generally as well as locally. In closing Mrs. Dickerson referred to the 13th chapter of First Corinthians, and stated, "If we do not have love in our hearts for those we see each day, how can we love God whom we do not see?" She was presented with a gift from the group to be used in her church work.

Mrs. W. L. Cummins had prepared a worship center, an altar laid with dark green linen, upon which was a white cross and lighted white taper. In the background was a picture of children of various races working and playing together.

Mrs. Rue Thaxton gave the devotion, prior to which Mrs. L. N. Davenport played soft piano music. Mrs. Thaxton's subject, "The Master Calls Us to Service," cited ways individuals may serve by defending the oppressed and needy. Two Negro spirituals, "Here's One" and "Over My Head," sung by Mrs. Davenport, added much to the devotional period.

Mrs. Ralph Brown Sr. presented the lesson. She pointed out that the first weeks of February when we dedicate our thoughts to Abraham Lincoln provide an appropriate time for the lesson, "The Outreach of the Methodist Church Among Rural Negroes." Specific areas described included Maryland, Arkansas, Mississippi and South Carolina. She stated that lack of transportation is a major reason for the rural Negro not attending church. Mobile units, now in operation, bring the church to these areas and help start Methodist churches. Mrs. Brown said. She concluded by quoting from Lincoln's second inaugural address.

Mrs. B. E. Montgomery, in behalf of the American Red Cross, gave a detailed explanation of the Blood Bank program and requested cooperation of the members.

Mrs. Herman Schwartz announced that the Ruth Division will serve a dinner at Wesley Center tonight at 6 o'clock, the Kuppers Kllass will hold a TV program, silent auction and lunch at Wesley Center on Feb. 19 at 6 p.m., and that the World Day of Prayer program will be on March 5 with the host church to be announced later. It was also announced that a mission study, "Jeremiah," to be taught on Wednesday evenings by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Cummins, will begin Feb. 24. Refreshments were served by the Dorcas division, of which Mrs. T. A. Wilkison is chairman.

Mrs. J. C. Reiger of Bloomington, sister of Mrs. Edward L. Heister, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Heister.

Administration
Studies More
Aid to Indochina

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration is considering additional steps short of direct intervention to bolster the French fight against the Communists in Indochina, informed sources revealed today.

They said two proposals being studied call for increased emphasis on the delivery of planes requested by France and the dispatch of a top-level military mission to take a hand in planning French strategy.

Another possible move believed to be under consideration is a naval blockade to try to stem some of the flow of weapons and equipment from Communist China to the Vietminh rebels.

America's chief military planners feel the West absolutely cannot afford to let Indochina fall, it was reliably reported, and that the United States can take various measures short of war to prevent this from happening.

Defense officials confirmed that South Korean President Syngman Rhee has suggested he might send one of his American-trained divisions to help out the beleaguered French-Vietnam forces.

Two Democratic senators—John J. Sparkman (Ala.) and John C. Stennis (Miss.)—warned that such a move would be an open invitation to the Communists to resume the war in Korea.

Gen. John E. Hull, commander of U. S. Far Eastern forces, said after a White House call Thursday that there would be "certain advantages" in the idea and that it would "not necessarily" bring new fighting in Korea.

But in the Pentagon there was doubt whether the move would be worth the risk of weakening the Allied position in Korea. Sparkman also made this point. State Department officials frowned, saying it might send Red China troops into Indochina.

McDole; church cleaning (Easter), Mrs. Trafton Dennis, (Christmas) Mrs. Edw. Kezely, program, Mrs. Walter Geltosky and library, Mrs. Agnes Schneider.

Mrs. W. L. Reynolds prepared eight cheer cards and one birth card sent during the month of January.

The secretary, Mrs. N. E. Harold, read a letter from Mrs. J. J. Klein, deanery chairman of Libraries and Literature, stating that February is Catholic Press month and Feb. 21 to 27 Catholic Book week and urged all the members to subscribe for Catholic publications.

Mrs. John Lockwood led in the recitation of the rosary and Mrs. Trafton Dennis, president, stated that since this is the Marian year the devotion each month during this year would be the recitation of the rosary by the members.

Mrs. J. J. Klein urged the members to respond to the appeal of the Red Cross for blood donors when the bloodmobile comes to Harrisburg.

Fr. T. G. Bruns talked on the "Marian Year" and said the chief purpose was to promote moral reform and religious renewal in our lives. He announced that permission had been granted by the Holy Father to have evening Mass on the Holy days during this year.

Refreshments of homemade cake and coffee were served at the close of the program by the following:

Mrs. Victor Humm, Mrs. Thomas Wolf, Mrs. Walter Brown, Mrs. Estelle Thorpe, Mrs. John Wenzel, Mrs. Leo Richmond, Mrs. Billy Johnson, Mrs. Robert Hatfield and Mrs. Louis Humm.

Union Vet, 107, Pays Respects to Old Adversaries

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI)—The hatred and animosity of four years of Civil War were erased for all time today as the last survivor of the Union Army paid his respects to his old adversaries in Gray and their lost cause.

The four living Confederates, in return, sent him hearty congratulations on his 107th birthday Thursday.

The Union veteran, Albert Woolson of Duluth, sent greetings to the Southern veterans as he was surrounded by well-wishers on the occasion of his birthday.

"I wish you could be here to join me," the former drummer boy said. "God bless you."

One of the surviving Confederate veterans, 107-year-old Thomas Evans Riddle, was too sick to reply. Another, Walter W. Williams, 100, of Franklin, Tex., could not be interviewed.

But William Allen Lunday, 105, of Laurel Hill, Fla., said "Sincere congratulations and best wishes to Yankee Woolson on his 107th birthday."

"I hope he will celebrate many more. Tell Woolson to take care of himself."

Confederate veteran John Sallie, 106, of Slat, Va., said, "I'm looking forward to seeing him again and to shaking his hand once more."

On Tuesday, April 13th, the citizens of this State will have the opportunity and privilege of selecting the officials who will represent them in Public Office. That selection is very important for many reasons, among which is the fact we all know that Government is only as sound as the integrity and ability of the Officials who are elected to administer its affairs.

On the Republican Ballot April 13th you will find the name of GORDON E. KERR, Candidate for Representative in the General Assembly from the 51st District. Two candidates are to be selected by the Republican Voters for this Office.

As a candidate for re-election, having served the people of this district for two terms, I sincerely believe, because of my business and legislative experience, that I am in a position to better serve you than ever before.

In view of the fact that the 51st Senatorial District will elect a Freshman Senator our district will be greatly benefited if he has the counsel and cooperation of an experienced legislator. I pledge my fullest cooperation with our new Senator.

It is sometime until the election, but it is not too early to make your selection for Representative.—Decide now, and elect those who can best represent you and the interest of our District.

The 51st is a large district and it will be impossible for me to see every voter personally, but I will make a very active campaign and will present the facts from time to time through this, your community newspaper. I will appreciate your support and help in this campaign.

Sincerely yours,

GORDON E. KERR,
Representative 51st District.

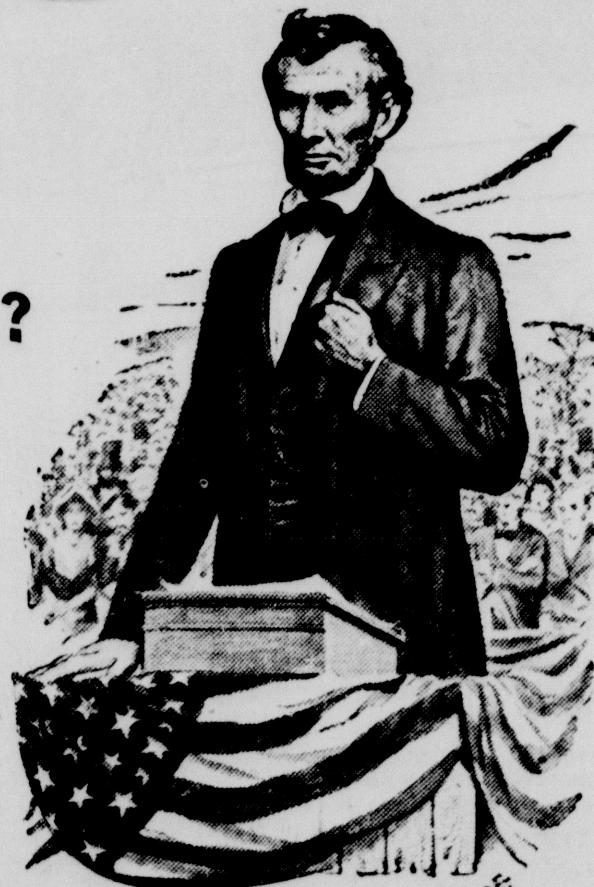

P.S.: A law was passed by the last State Legislature making it a violation to leave any kind of ice box where children could get in it. If you see one anywhere, warn the owner, you may save some child's life.

Knowland Opposes Blanket Indictment of Democrats On Basis of Patriotism

By United Press

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland (Calif.) rejected the idea that Democrats generally are any less patriotic than Republicans.

Knowland told reporters he had served with many loyal and patriotic Democrats in the Senate. "You can't draw party lines on that basis," he said.

President Eisenhower had voiced similar sentiments on Wednesday, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon said much the same thing Thursday night.

Knowland said he didn't believe in "blanket" indictments of the Democratic Party as an organization. But he refused to comment on a speech in which Sen. William E. Jenner (R-Ind.) charged that the Truman administration sent American troops to Korea with the idea of having them defeated by the Reds.

Jenner made the speech Thursday night. Knowland said he hadn't seen and would not comment on it, or upon speeches by any other GOP Lincoln Day orators.

"Every person who makes a speech has to assume his own responsibility," he said.

Sen. Guy M. Gillette (D-Iowa) said speeches like Jenner's "are so viciously unreasonable that they will fall off their own weight."

Another Democrat, Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes (Fla.), said in the House that the Republican definition of "security risk" apparently is "any Democrat who holds a government job."

Other congressional news:

Mexicans: The House Agriculture Committee approved legislation to permit the government to import Mexican farm labor without Mexico's consent.

Bricker: Knowland said "everyone seems desirous" of getting a vote as soon as possible on the Bricker amendment to curb presidential treaty powers after the Senate resumes debate next week. He conceded, however, that there is no substantial agreement among various groups backing substitutes for the Bricker proposal, which is being fought by the administration.

Returns Opened: President Eisenhower signed an order giving a special House committee authority to inspect tax returns of charitable, educational, scientific, and religious organizations over the past three years. The committee is investigating tax-exempt groups. New Law: President Eisenhower signed a bill permitting the Treasury to cancel $681,769,703 of the Commodity Credit Corp.'s indebtedness. The CCC, which handles price supporting crop loans, was getting close to its borrowing ceiling.

Lewis Observes 74th Birthday; Plans Projects

WASHINGTON (AP) — John L. Lewis reached his 74th birthday today still brewing big projects for the future.

The bushy-browed chief of the United Mine Workers marked the end of a comparatively peaceful year with a quiet family dinner at his historic Alexandria, Va., home. Lewis had nothing official to say for the occasion.

But despite his grim silence there arose reports of plans to expand his own union to take in some 60,000 East Coast longshoremen and, further, to form a united labor front comprised of the CIO, AFL, the UMW and other independent unions.

Informed sources reported that affiliation talks have begun between Lewis and representatives of at least half of the AFL-ousted International Longshoremen's union. According to these sources, the UMW is considering taking over initially the ILA membership in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Norfolk. These locals comprise at least half of the independent ILA, which is reported to have 60,000 to 75,000 members.

The status of the ILA in New York is undecided pending the outcome of a jurisdictional dispute with the AFL.

No New Contract Demands

Rumors also have circulated from Lewis' recent closed-door meetings with the president of the largest AFL union, Dave Beck of the Teamsters, and with the president of the second largest union, Dave McDonald of the Steel workers.

Union sources say that Lewis in these talks has been laying the groundwork for a united labor front to strengthen labor's cause in case of a possible recession ahead. Some sources say that Lewis, having reached an "elder statesman" age, has this as his primary objective to cap his career.

So far as his own field goes—the mine workers—Lewis has sat on his hands since Aug. 1. At that time he became eligible to make new contract demands but he hasn't acted.

Reports have it that he is waiting for the CIO United Steelworkers to make new contract demands. About 70,000 of the 400,000 UMW members work in coal mines that belong to the steel industry.

Eisenhower Details New Housing Program

Identical Bills Are Introduced In House, Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today presented Congress with the detailed plans of his "new look" housing program, designed to help all Americans live in better homes.

The President placed special emphasis in his program on encouraging all Americans — from those living in slums to those in well-to-do residential suburbs — to buy their own homes.

The program includes a special "experimental" plan to help low-income families buy homes costing up to $8,000 for as little as a $200 down payment. The government would guarantee 100 per cent of the 40-year mortgage. These homes, however, would be limited to families "displaced" by slum clearance projects.

It also would "liberalize" present Federal Housing Authority mortgage terms and increase allowable FHA mortgage coverage to $20,000. The President would be given "discretionary" power to cut down-payment requirements on all FHA-guaranteed homes to 5 per cent and increase the mortgage terms to 30 years.

Bills Introduced

The details of the President's housing program were spelled out in identical bills introduced in Congress today. Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R-Mich.) of the House Banking Committee and Chairman Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) of the Senate Banking Committee introduced the administration bills in their respective chambers.

Included in the program is a broad and perhaps far-reaching program of slum rehabilitation and prevention. It provides five million dollars for cities and towns to conduct experiments "on new and improved techniques for preventing and eliminating slums."

It also requests authority to loan cities and towns 700 million dollars to carry out slum prevention programs. Another 250 million dollars would be made available for outright grants to cities for this work.

FHA and Veterans Administration interest rates would be made "flexible" under the Eisenhower cent above average market yield of long-term government bonds. This yield is now slightly below 3 per cent.

Come A-Smokin'

by Nelson Nye

THE STORY: Grete Marratt has taken over the identity of Luke Usher, whom he resembles, in order to hide from the law, but he has found trouble. Usher had accused Rancher Clem Ryerson of murdering his father, then had disappeared. Ryerson's Wineglass ranch had taken over the Usher cattle and was using its land. Marratt refuses to heed a warning to leave the ranch and he refuses to give another rancher, Clint Gainor, a partnership arrangement on the Usher land. Then he discovers that it was Ryerson's daughter he had rescued from the embrace of Chark Crafkin, Wineglass foreman.

In all of these events, Marratt carefully hides his own identity and poses as Usher, realizing he may take a bullet meant for Usher.

XIII

The perspiring Indian agent, with many lip-chewing pauses, nervously sketched in the salient features of Marratt's visit while Crafkin's eyes turned blacker and blacker. With the skin stretched tight across the jut of his cheekbones Crafkin finally asked, "You see Naome today?"

"Naome?" Beckwith stared at him stupidly. "All right," Crafkin growled. "What's this guy look like?"

"The fellow was obviously Usher."

"You never saw Usher; he left before you come here. Describe him."

Beckwith stammeringly did so and the Wineglass raged reluctantly nodded. "It was him, right enough," he said, as though to himself, "but what I can't understand is—"

"You haven't heard the worst of it. I'd been outside talking with a couple of Indians. When I came in he was already there—in my office, I mean. In a chair," Beckwith said, swallowing hard, "by the desk. I hadn't any reason right then to be suspicious—like you said, I'd never met up with either of the Ushers. And I was—I'll add,

Not for an instant did Crafkin believe Luke had gotten those checks—it was that brat of Ryerson's. She'd been a heap too elaborate in her departure this morning, babbling to cookie how she was figuring to visit that sick nester woman over on Breakneck Creek, then dawdling around until the crew had been dispatched before setting off in that outlandish getup.

If she'd been any kin of his, Crafkin would have taken a rope's end to her before he'd have let her flaunt her old man's shame all over the cactus. But it wasn't her costume which had sharpened his suspicions. Always—even since she had been grown enough to get into them—she'd taken a delight lolling around in those trifling gewgaws. They had been her mother's and like her blank-faced Injun stubbornness, had become familiar by this time to go unnoticed. It was her un-Injunlike chatter, her shining up to the cook, which had caught at Crafkin's attention. He had let her get a couple of hours' start, then had tracked her long enough to make sure she'd been bound for Beckwith's.

Too long and much too carefully had Crafkin been in pains to insure that his intention at this late date. All through the years—even before that day at the Half Circle U—he'd been working to bring about Ryerson's sudden death or downfall in such fashion as would give himself complete control of Wineglass—if not outright possession. By patient and crafty maneuvering he had made Clem Ryerson into a feared and hated cattle king; it was Crafkin, not Ryerson, who had made Wineglass all powerful. It was a tribute to the ramrod's genius that not even Ryerson suspected this.

But patience was a thing any man could get fed up with and Usher's return had badly jolted Crafkin.

Ryerson had been out of town at the time, and the range boss, dangerously rattled, had attempted to gun Usher down from ambush.

Poor light and distance had played host with his marksmanship, but he had certainly expected Usher to panic. Instead of hauling his freight as he had that other time, the crazy fool had moved into his abandoned ranch house and gone snooping around that chiseling agent's office.

Through the rage churning through him came one lancing streak of caution that swung him completely around on the porch and sent his bull voice over the yard. "Tularosa!"

Into the glow of the lamp he'd left burning came a bony breed who was clad in a dirty pair of cotton pantaloons and a dirtier cotton shirt gaping open to his navel. A club foot gave him a crablike gait.

"Mount the crew and put them to combing the flats and gulches for sign of Luke Usher—I run onto him down by Snake Canyon shining up to Naome. He's probably dug for the tules but tell 'em to make sure. Then came back here and sat on this porch till I call you."

Geologists are scouring the country for a new strategic metal. It is hard, lustrous, steel-gray nobius, vital for production of high-temperature-resistant alloys for jet engines. It probably occurs over most of the world, but is a rare mineral everywhere.

THROWN FOR LOSS—It could be an adagio, but it's only a foul as Topeka High's Don Erwin curls himself around Bob Weaver of Shawnee Mission of Kansas City, Kans., during a game in Topeka. (NEA)

Looking AT Sports

By BILL MELTON

Bevo Francis, college basketball's most discussed player and point-maker deluxe, will be in St. Louis Feb. 27. Bevo and his Rio Grande, Ohio, teammates will meet Shurtleff College of Alton in the feature of a college basketball double-head at the St. Louis Arena Saturday, Feb. 27.

Bevo has averaged better than 45 points per game this season and against Hillsdale, Mich., college collected 113 points. The 1954 University of Illinois track roster includes among the returning lettermen four southern Illinois products who have been seen in action with their high school teams by local area track fans.

The southern Illinois tracksters are John Bauer, 245-pound senior from Benton, shot put and discus; Ronald Mitchell, junior from East St. Louis, high jump; Richard Wham, junior, Centralia, high jump and sprints; Jim Wright, Lawrenceville, senior, pole vault.

The U. of I. indoor track season starts Saturday with the Michigan State Relays at East Lansing, Mich. Wright, the pole vaulter, will not be available for indoor track as he is a regular on the basketball team.

A look at the records show that Illinois has hogged Big Ten Track honors for the past three seasons, taking top honors in both the indoor and outdoor conference meets in 1951, 1952 and 1953.

Walt Framer, a TV-radio agent, offered Joe DiMaggio and Marilyn Monroe a million dollar deal to appear in a husband-wife TV show, reports The Sporting News. Incidentally, Joe could be had for a TV guest shot at $350 before he married Marilyn. The price is now 5,000 bucks. Seems that a lot of folks who are not baseball fans want to see the outfielder now.

PLAYERS' PAY AMONG SMALL COST ITEMS

Major League player payrolls are the highest in history, but they are far from being the most important item of a club's expense. The Sporting News reports Walter F. O'Malley, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers as saying, apparently unmindful of the fact, rich owners are crying "poor mouth" while trying to get their athletes to sign contracts for 1954.

"Our biggest payroll is to Uncle Sam," O'Malley said. "We pay the government two dollars in taxes for every one dollar we pay to players."

"Furthermore it costs more to operate Ebbets Field, with ground crews and such things, than it does to pay players. Or if you want to consider another big expense, which makes the player payroll seem a small part of the over-all cost of operating, consider the farm system. Or for that matter consider how much it costs to transport and house a team from the start of spring training to the end of the World's Series."

According to The Sporting News O'Malley said the Brooklyn payroll had been increased steadily and for several years had been over the half million dollar mark.

Northwestern, with Upset Notions, Plays Favored Indiana Saturday Night

CHICAGO (UPI) — Indiana's Big Ten basketball leaders meet an underdog nemesis in Northwestern Saturday, and though the Hoosiers were heavy favorites, the Wildcats had upset notions.

Indiana had its two toughest games with Northwestern last season, winning on the Wildcat floor, 88-84, on two buckets in the last 30 seconds and taking a 90-88 decision at Bloomington in an overtime.

Last year's Hoosier team won 17 games and lost 1 in conference play while this year's group, aiming to successfully defend both the Big Ten crown and the national title, will be going for its 9th straight league win this season and its 10th straight over two campaigns.

The Indiana-Northwestern game will headline a full card of five conference battles. The tilt, slated for Northwestern's new McGaw Hall, was sold out early this week and a crowd of more than 10,000 was expected.

Northwestern's chief problem will be to combat Indiana's Don Schlundt, the league-leading scorer who has averaged 30.2 points per game as Indiana axed eight league rivals.

But to give him an opportunity to score, the Hoosiers also have Bob Leonard, another all conference player who ranks eighth in league scoring with an average of 17.8 points per game.

Iowa Plays Minnesota Northwestern has one man in the top 10 scorers, Frank Elhmann, who has hit 17.7 points per game, the 9th best mark. The next best Wildcat pointmaker was Harold Grant, 19th in the standings with a 12.7 average.

A second major contest on the program pits second place Iowa against third place Minnesota at Minneapolis, Iowa, whose only conference defeat was to Minnesota, 65-55, earlier, could be forced to share the runnerup spot by another Gopher win.

Minnesota, on its home court, is a 6-point favorite. The Gophers have three men in the top 15 scorers, third place Dick Garret, 11th place Chuck Mencel and 12th place Ed Kalafat, while Iowa has only Bill Logan, ranked 10th, in the first 15.

Other games on the program were Illinois at Wisconsin, Michigan at Ohio State and Michigan State at Purdue in conference scraps, while St. Louis plays De Paul in the Chicago Stadium.

Schlundt Holds Two Big 10 Records, Heads for Third

CHICAGO (UPI) — Indiana's Don Schlundt, already boasting two new Big Ten scoring records, was heading for another mark for highest scoring average per game over the entire season, league statistics showed today.

Schlundt, defending champion in the scoring chase, was pace-setter after eight games with an average of 30.2 points per game, well over the current mark of 26 points set by Chuck Darling of Iowa.

Schlundt last week set a single game consecutive free throw record of 14, while earlier he set a single game scoring mark of 47. So far this season he has hit on 53.3 per cent of his field goal efforts.

Illinois' John Kerr, averaging 27.7 points per game now to rank second to Schlundt, also was ahead of Darling's record.

In team statistics, the league leading Indiana quint moved into first place on offense with an average of 87.6 points per game, while dropping to fifth on defense. Illinois was second on offense and Ohio State third.

On defense Iowa's second place five was the leader, permitting 63.2 points per game, while Wisconsin was second and Michigan State third.

Carmi Defeats Local Junior High, 57-49, In Regional Final

Carmi took top honors in the regional grade school tournament by defeating Harrisburg last night in the championship game, 57-49. The tourney was played at Carmi.

The game was close throughout, but Carmi held the advantage at the end of every period, 20-14, 32-26, 44-40 and the final count, 57-49.

Norris City took consolation honors by defeating Grayville in the battle for third place.

Clark was high point maker for Harrisburg with 20, followed by Price 10, Biggs 8, Yates 6 and Abel 5. Others in action for Harrisburg were Drue, Frohock, Rauh and Murrie.

McCombs of Carmi was high scorer of the game with 24. Others in Carmi's scoring column were Loewenberg 5, Wiley 10, Setser 3, Sexton 11 and Trout 4.

LINCOLN LEGENDS: How True Are They?

Lincoln, the man, has become a living legend to most all Americans. The many facets of his life and his complex personality have been written and rewritten about since his death in 1865. And yet, despite all the exhaustive efforts made by historians to pinpoint events in the life of this much-beloved President, there still is a store of Lincoln lore which has refused to yield itself to positive proof. These sketches illustrate some of the most speculated-about stories told about the Great Emancipator.

No one is positive whether Lincoln was the champion rail splitter of his time as his neighbor William Wood said, but the legend grew. It was voiced at the 1860 convention when he was introduced as the "Rail Candidate" by his cousin John Hanks.

There are many versions of the celebrated fight between Lincoln and Jack Armstrong. Early writers said Lincoln won the fight. However, the papers of Rowan Herndon, who was present at the battle, said it was a draw, with both men quitting.

Lincoln became a great storyteller after his arrival in New Salem, Ill., and his reputation as the greatest of his time may be an exaggeration. Historians believe his ability was due to his many travels about the backwoods country.

Lincoln reportedly got his first sight of slavery while in New Orleans with John Hanks. As they watched the auction of a young mulatto girl, Lincoln is said to have cried out: "By God, let's get away . . . If I ever get a chance, I'll hit slavery hard."

William Herndon originated the legend of the Lincoln-Ann Rutledge love affair. Legend has it that Lincoln almost lost his mind over her death. Speaking of her grave, he supposedly said to a close friend: "My heart lies buried there."

Using an almanac, Lincoln defended Duff Armstrong in a murder trial. He proved that on night of the crime there wasn't enough moon for the witness to see the defendant. However, many say it was Lincoln's convincing oratory that freed Duff.

Lincoln is said to have grown a beard to please 11-year-old Grace Bedell. Others say he grew it because the U. S. never had a bearded President, so Lincoln and the Republicans started a new era. Sketches show progress of his beard, 1860-61.

Administration Believes Industry Will Expand if Depreciation Rules Liberalized

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials believe that business will spend more money for new plants and machinery—and thereby create more jobs—if the tax rules governing depreciation are liberalized.

Depreciation rarely if ever figures in the income tax calculations of the average individual. But it is a vital matter to business.

Suppose a manufacturer builds a one-million-dollar plant that is estimated to have a useful life of 25 years. Under present law, the company can claim only 1.25 of this outlay—or $40,000—as part of its cost of doing business during the year that the plant was built.

The next year, and every year thereafter for the 25 years it can "write off" another $40,000 of the plant's cost by claiming it as a deduction on its tax return. This is a tax deduction for depreciation.

New Set of Rules

President Eisenhower has proposed—and the House Ways and Means committee has written into the pending tax revision law—a new set of rules under which a firm could write off two-thirds of the cost of new plants and equipment in one-half of their estimated useful life.

Thus, if a firm invested $100,000 this year in new machinery estimated to be good for 10 years, it could write off $20,000 the first year, $16,000 the second year, $12,800 the third year, $10,240 the fourth and $8,192 the fifth—a total of $67,232 for the first half of the equipment's estimated life.

Administration officials make these arguments for the new system:

1. It would not be a tax "gift" to business. The new rules would apply only to future expansion. To take advantage of them, a firm would have to lay out its own money on job-creating production facilities.

2. The present rules discourage expansion. Costly equipment, which may theoretically have a useful life of 25 years, can be outmoded by new processes or changed market conditions in a much shorter time. But under present law, if the life of the new equipment is originally estimated at 25 years, that rate of depreciation has to be used for tax purposes for the entire 25 years regardless of the fact that the equipment may become obsolescent.

3. Some investors are holding back because they think taxes will be cut in future years. That consideration would be offset by the new depreciation rules, under which deductions would be greater—and corporate taxes therefore smaller—for companies that expand in the immediate future.
